WHAT IS SUCCESS?

Are you a success? No one likes to be regarded as a failure and yet a man or woman looked upon as such by an uncomprehending world may have achieved the goal that to him, or to her, spells success.

As a contemporary sagely observer, "instinct upon a less external distinction of success than wealth, happiness, or posthumous fame, we may say that success is something a man is or becomes, not something he takes or gets. To be successful is to have made a right use of life; to ask what we have got by it is irrelevant."

There are many who estimate the success of others by the size of their bank account. A big house, an expensive car, lavish hospitality are looked upon as the outward and visible signs of prosperity and well-being. And yet the owner of all these may regard himself as a dismal failure.

He may have fallen short of those ideals and ambitions which to him meant success in its wider sense. On the other hand, the possessor of a modest home, a small income, a contented family, may have reached the goal which during the years of striving served as an incentive to further endeavor.

Success is a realization of that estimate which we have placed upon ourselves. The "vision glorious" of one man might hold little, if any, attraction for his brother. But the realization of that vision marks the difference between success and failure. It is the embodiment of a life's dream, the fruition of a life's promise. And if a man has been so fortunate as to reach a realization of that estimate which he once placed upon himself and his capabilities, he surely may be regarded as a Success in the truest sense of the word.

THE OTHER MAN

Perhaps he sometimes slipped a bit—
Well, so have you.
Perhaps some things he ought to quit—

Well, so should you.
Perhaps he may have faltered—why,
Why, all men do, and so have I.
You must admit, unless you lie,
That so have you.

Perhaps if we would stop and think,
Both I and you,
When painting someone black as ink,
As some folks do;
Perhaps, if we would recollect,
Perfection we never should expect,
But just a man half-way correct,
Like me and you.

I'm just a man who's fairly good,
I'm just like you;
I've done some things I never should,
Perhaps like you;
But, thank the Lord, I've sense to see
The rest of men with charity;
They're good enough if good as me—
Say, men like you.

SOURCES OF
GOOD SEED GRAIN

(Experimental Farms Note)
Good seed is the first requirement of good crops, and because of this,
no effort should be spared in procuring the best.

Due largely to the efforts of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association,
good reliable seed is perhaps more readily available at the present time, than has been the case at any time in the past. This Association, made up entirely of growers has had as its objective, for a period of 25 years,
the building up of reliable seed stocks of standard varieties, and the production of this seed in quantities sufficient to meet the popular demand.

Seed that comes up to the requirements of Canadian Seed Growers' Association, and bearing a Government seal is known as registered seed. Such seed is pure as to variety to the extent of 99.9 per cent, and furthermore is practically free from weed seeds and seeds of other kinds of grain.

Registered seed is offered for sale by the growers themselves, and by reliable seedsmen in Canada. The Canadian Seed Growers' Association
issues a catalogue each year, giving the names and addresses of growers of registered seed throughout Canada, and the approximate quantity for sale. This catalogue can be obtained through the office of the Association in the Jackson Building, Ottawa. It is therefore possible to obtain the names of registered seed growers in any particular district in the country. This is a valuable service because of the importance of using seed grown locally, and adapted to local conditions.

The establishment of both large and small seed cleaning centres in some sections of the country, central-izes the cleaning and marketing of large quantities of registered seed, and supplies another medium through which high quality seed can be obtained.

When the purchaser is not prepared to pay the comparatively small difference in price between registered seed and ordinary seed, it is sometimes possible to locate seed that traces back to registered seed. When this is done, however, there is entirely no guarantee regarding the purity and quality in general of this stock, but it is often the case that this seed

may be better than ordinary seed.

By purchasing registered seed in Canada, one need have no fear as to its reliability, both as regards true-ness to variety and quality in general. It is never safe to invest money in seed upon which a crop is dependent, without a certain guarantee that the variety is recognized as being adapted to the locality and that the seeds are viable and comparatively free from impurities.

High quality seed of the registered grades can therefore be purchased either from the growers or from reliable seedsmen in Canada, who usually carry large stocks of this seed representing the standard varieties recognized by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

been for centuries. Food conditions are also ideal on account of the shallowness of the water in the bays. It was not long until the ducks realized they were safe in these protected lakes, and for a few years their increase was very satisfactory. For a time it looked as though the question of maintaining the birds in sufficient numbers had been solved, but such was not to be. Just when everything appeared to be working smoothly, an obstacle appeared, which has since threatened the whole undertaking. The crows soon learned that the sanctuaries suited their every requirement for breeding purposes. The thickly wooded land surrounding the lakes provided excellent cover for nests, from which they could view the marshes which they hunted for young and eggs. In reality, these splendid water-fowl breeding areas have proved to be ideal sanctuaries for the crows the past few years, and will remain so while present conditions exist. So far little has been done to combat this new menace which endangers the very existence of our wild ducks. Competitions to encourage the destruction of crows and magpies and their eggs have been conducted the last few years by the provincial government, but the results have been meagre. The provincial government is responsible for the administration of the game laws, and we must look to that authority to act in the present crisis. Many thousands of dollars are annually received by the government from the sale of game bird licenses, and it seems only reasonable that this money, or most of it, should be spent in an effort to restore the ducks to their former numbers. Otherwise this source of revenue will disappear. Many hunters the past season refused to pay the price of a license because of the scarcity of ducks. It has been rumored that the government realizes the seriousness of the situation and will, at the next session of the legislature, consider the matter of paying a cash bounty on crows and magpies and their eggs. The government can rest assured that such a policy would be popular with the people, as well as a sound investment. But the amount paid would have to be substantial to bring about satisfactory results. A bounty of from twelve to fifteen cents for each crow, and one cent per egg, during the months of April, May and June would bring out an army of boys to the rescue of the ducks. For the balance of the season a smaller amount could be paid, in several of the States it was found necessary to pay as much as twenty-five cents for the birds, and three cents for eggs, before they were brought under control.

Alberta is not alone in her quarrel with the crow as Manitoba and Saskatchewan are experiencing the same trouble. In the event of our government adopting a bonus policy, the co-operation of those provinces should be enlisted. As the crow spends only half the year within our borders and the balance of the year somewhere in the States, the question of control assumes an international aspect. Its winter home it not definitely known — it might be in Oregon or Texas, it might be in far-off Louisiana, or even in Ohio or Michigan. In an effort to locate their winter quarters a number of young birds will be banded next season. It should not be difficult then to enlist the services of the sportsmen of those localities to fight the black rascals during the winter. The people of the United States are as vitally interested in water-fowl conservation as are Canadians, and they have spent large sums of money in providing sanctuaries in the south, where water fowl may spend the winter in safety. The majority of the birds using those sanctuaries every winter are bred in Canada. It is up to the people of Alberta to provide proper protection for the birds during the summer.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria. At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may seem to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every drugstore has it.

them? Already some species of wild ducks, here in countless flocks twenty years ago, are becoming rare, and unless strenuous measures are taken to safeguard those remaining, they too, will be doomed to the fate that befell the Great Auk, the Labrador duck and other, extinct American birds. The loons, both blue-winged and green-winged, the gadwall and shoveller were our commonest ducks at the beginning of the century, when every pot-hole on the prairies, contained water and provided suitable feeding and nesting places. Gadwall were more numerous than than mallard are today, in fact, more gadwall were killed in an afternoon's hunt than all kinds together. As many as a dozen teal were often taken with the discharge of two barrels, so close did they fly when leaving the sloughs. During the past season many sportsmen failed to get a single individual of the species mentioned.

The breaking up of the prairies and the draining and drying of innumerable lakes and sloughs in western Canada has been an important factor in the alarming decrease of the wild ducks of this continent. At the annual meeting of the International Conservation commission, an interesting paper on this subject was presented by Mr. Hayes Lloyd, supervisor of migratory bird protection in Canada. This paper was reproduced in that excellent magazine Field and Stream, and was accompanied by a series of maps prepared by Mr. Lloyd, showing the northern limits of the breeding range of our Canadian ducks. Commenting on Mr. Lloyd's exhaustive study of the matter, the editor asked the pertinent question, "Where will your ducks come from twenty years from now?"

It has long been the impression that most of the North American ducks nested in those vast, remote regions, stretching north from the prairies of western Canada to the Arctic sea, and that they would never be molested by the agriculturist seeking new land. According to Mr. Lloyd this assumption is far from correct. He claims that the best farm land in the west coincides largely with the areas of other continents. Those who have given this matter close attention it is recognized that this claim is too true. It is well that the attention of sportsmen has been directed to the situation while there is still time to consider remedial measures.

Cultivation of the prairies and park lands has already destroyed to a large extent the natural nesting grounds of the mallard, pintail and widgeon, all highland nesting species. These varieties have, however, fared better than some of the marsh nesting species, as the shoveller, redhead, canvasback, and the teal. Such have been crowded into the few remaining marshes for nesting, and it is in these restricted areas that the crow can carry on his devilish work of extermination in a systematic manner. The large number of crows seen hunting over the marshes during the nesting season, and the extremely small number of young ducks observed in the same sloughs later in the season has been too common a sight in recent years.

Shortly after the Migratory Bird Convention act was signed by the United States and Canada, the Dominion government set aside a number of lakes in various parts of the west, as sanctuaries for water fowl. Several of these are located in the well settled country midway between Edmonton and Camrose, and are admirably adapted for such purposes. The extensive marshes surrounding Mistisic lake, Pelican lake and the two Miquelon lakes are favorable nesting places for many species of ducks, and no doubt have

ADVISES INCREASE STOCK POLO PONIES

Edmonton, Jan. 11.—Breeders of cattle and horses in central and northern Alberta in session here yesterday devoted their attention to the problem before their respective industries, and agreed upon several definite conclusions which should be of aid to them in the future. Chief of these were recommendations aiming at the promotion of the light horse trade in this province, and the urging of improved shipping facilities that largely of livestock in transit may be reduced.

All four associations, sheep, swine, cattle and horses, amended their constitutions to permit directors to hold office for two years, and during the session each elected a new slate of officers.

A. A. MacMillan, chief of the sheep and swine division, Ottawa, scheduled as one of Thursday's main speakers, did not arrive in the city until yesterday, but appeared before the cattlemen in the afternoon and spoke briefly on some policies of stock marketing.

N. T. Adams, Calgary, gave the horsemen of the district interested in the production of animals of the hunter and polo type advice based on his experience with a breeding station in the Calgary area started in 1922.

According to R. Wilson, Dominion horse promoter for the West, horses of the agricultural and heavy draught types are due to improve their status. There is a growing demand in the East for prairie stock, he stated, some 34,500 having been shipped to that market in the first 11 months of last year, an increase of nearly 10,000 over the whole year of 1928. Mr. Wilson outlined the requirements of the eastern buyer and emphasized the importance of shipping only clean boned, well developed stock.

Hon. George Hoadley, himself a horse rancher in a large way, told the assembly the horse would never regain his prestige as long as inferior stock was permitted to remain on farm and range, and gave it as his opinion that the only way to put the horse business on a sound basis was to eliminate inferior animals.

This, the minister said, could possibly be accomplished by selling the carcasses of the misfits for fox food or for slaughter and export. That this method was practical was proven by a casual journey of requirements in Quebec and Prince Edward Island where some fox ranchers, each used as much as 500,000 pounds of horse meat during the season, and by a letter from an American abattoir official addressed to the association and read at the meeting, asking for data on the number of animals available for butchering.

The cattle breeders were addressed by Dr. J. E. Bowstead, University of Alberta, who taking as his subject "Milk Secretions," explained the various processes in the animal body which converts food materials into milk, and gave an outline of the various organs taking part in the operation.

Dr. A. McLoughry, Winnipeg, in charge of the promotion of beef grading among the consumers of Western Canada reviewed the history of this policy to date and told of the steps taken to popularize beef. Although only a few months old, beef grading has been enthusiastically received, this speaker stated, and some substantial benefit to the producer is anticipated in the future.

The members of the association refused to give approval to a suggestion that horned cattle sold on the market be penalized one dollar per head, the fund thus created to be used for the benefit of the industry, but gave consent to a resolution asking the provincial government to consider giving financial assistance to livestock breeders in pure bred areas that they might secure sires of the right quality.

Over $1,500,000 was mailed recently as that payments to members of the share grain pools of Manitoba and Saskatchewan on the 1928 crops of oats, barley, flax and rye. This brings total payments to provincial pools by the Central Selling Agency to $146 per bushel on oats, $94 per bushel on barley, $22 per bushel on flax, and 98¢ per bushel on rye.

Manitoba's success at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, recently, is described by Premier Bracken as "the most recent and ever achieved by the province." Both in number and variety of championships and other winnings the records of past years have been far eclipsed.

CAUGHT

An Irishman who was driven to desperation through being workless, procured a pistol and took to the road in a lonely spot. Meeting a traveller he stopped him and "You know my name or your life? Seeing that Pat was green the man replied: "I'll tell you what I'll do, I'll give you all my money for that pistol."

"Agreed," said Pat, and on receiving the money he handed over the pistol.

"Now," said the traveller, "Hand it back, that money, or I'll blow your brains out."

COLONEL J. S. DENNIS RETIRES

Colonel J. S. Dennis, C.M.G., Chief Commissioner of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, will retire January 1, after 28 years with the company, according to the recent announcement made by E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the system, and the department will then be divided into the Department of Immigration and Colonization and the Department of Development.

Macalister, at present assistant chief commissioner of the Department of Immigration and Colonization and Major G. G. Ommanney will be the director of the Department of Development.

Colonel Dennis, or "J.S." as he is known to old-timers, was 73 years old last October, and has had a colorful career as any man in Canada. He went west in 1872 at the age of 16 on survey work and in 1885 saw service against Louis Riel as commander of the Dominion Land Survey Intelligence Corps which during the rebellion was known as "Dennis' Scouts". Among the outstanding work in which he was engaged was the laying out of irrigation systems in the Bessano Dam irrigation project of the Canadian Pacific Railway, east of Calgary. His unrivaled knowledge of Canadian economic and agrarian development has caused Colonel Dennis' name to be placed among the foremost of Empire builders. Although retiring as active head of the Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific Railway system, he will still be in the future development of the department since he will act in an advisory capacity to the company's directors.

Colonel Dennis has for more than 22 years given close attention to colonization and has been immediately interested in opportunities of development and colonization in the west and entered the Canadian Pacific service in 1907. He has done much work in the United States drawing attention to the unparalleled opportunities offered by the Canadian West. He was appointed assistant commissioner of the department in 1926. His ability in his chosen field was recently recognized by colonization experts from all parts of the continent who elected him chairman of the immigration committee of the American Railway Development Association.

Major Ommanney joined the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1907. As a qualified civil engineer he had previous to that date done work all over the world. In 1914 he was appointed special engineer to the president, and from 1915 to 1919 was overseas with the Royal Engineers Imperial units. On his return from the war he was appointed to Colonel Dennis' department as development engineer, bringing the natural resources of territories covered by the Canadian Pacific Railway into commercial use. He was appointed Director of Development Branch of the Department of Colonization & Development in January, 1928.

O. L. McPherson. This is a record for nearly twenty years, the 1929 total being the largest since 1910, when the capital building was underway.

The list of new buildings erected for the government during the year is as follows: Edmonton Normal school, $550,000; dormitory at the provincial institute, Oliver, $100,000; three buildings at the Mental Hospital, Ponoka—nurses' home, $60,000; treatment and reception building, $170,000; dining hall, $25,000. Government liquor store at Hanna, Lloydminster and Wainwright ($7,000 each); $21,000; court house, Hanna, $25,000; two service garages at Edmonton and Calgary ($25,000 each); $50,000; university hospital addition, $200,000; and small unit for Red Cross, $25,000; provincial training school at Red Deer, boys' dormitory, $30,000; and addition to present building, $15,000.

There was also built during the year an addition to the 'federal' jail at Fort Saskatchewan, but since it was done with prison labor, involving only a small expenditure for material, it is not included in the general construction program.

NEWSPAPER LAWS

Excerpts from Newspaper Law, printed for the benefit of any reader who may have mistaken ideas regarding same:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) if the subscriber does not take the paper out of the post office and state the reason for it not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he subscribes or not, is responsible for payment.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This follows the principle that a man must pay for what he uses.

SCOTCH TO THE END

Miles: Well, old Gent MacDonough remained Scotch to the last breath.
Plyses: What do you mean?
Miles: When he felt a heart attack coming on he managed to fall in front of a passing auto, so the insurance company would have to pay his widow double indemnity.

ADVISES INCREASE STOCK POLO PONIES

Edmonton, Jan. 11.—Breeders of cattle and horses in central and northern Alberta in session here yesterday devoted their attention to the problem before their respective industries, and agreed upon several definite conclusions which should be of aid to them in the future. Chief of these were recommendations aiming at the promotion of the right horse trade in this province, and the urging of improved shipping facilities that would, of livestock, in transit may be reduced.

All four associations, sheep, swine, cattle and horses, amended their constitutions to permit directors to hold office for two years, and during the session each elected a new slate of officers.

A. A. MacMillan, chief of the sheep and swine division, Ottawa, scheduled as one of Thursday's main speakers, did not arrive in the city until yesterday, but appeared before the cattlemen in the afternoon and spoke briefly on some policies of stock marketing.

N. P. Adams, Calgary, gave the horsemen of the district interested in the production of animals of the hunter and polo type advice based on his experience with a breeding station in the Calgary area started in 1922.

According to R. Wilson, Dominion horse promoter for the West, horses of the agricultural and heavy draught types are due to improve their status. There is a growing demand in the East for prairie stock, he stated, some 34,500 having been shipped to that market in the first 11 months of last year, an increase of nearly 10,000 over the whole year of 1928. Mr. Wilson outlined the requirements of the eastern buyer and emphasized the importance of shipping only clean boned, well developed stock.

Hon. George Headley, himself a horse rancher in a large way, told the assembly the horse would never regain his prestige as long as inferior stock was permitted to remain on farm and range, and gave it as his opinion that the only way to put the horse business on a sound basis was to eliminate inferior animals.

This, the minister said, could possibly be accomplished by selling the carcasses of the misfits for fox food or for slaughter and export. That this method was practical was proved by a casual survey of requirements in Quebec. Prince Edward Island where some fox ranchers such as used as much as 500,000 pounds of horse meat during the season, and by a letter from an American abattoir official addressed to the association and read at the meeting, asking for data on the number of animals available for butcher.

The cattle breeders were addressed by Dr. J. E. Howland, University of Alberta, who taking as his subject, "Milk Secretions," explained the various processes in the animal body which converts food materials into milk, and gave an outline of the various organs taking part in the operation.

Dr. A. McLoughry, Winnipeg, in charge of the promotion of best grading among the consumers of Western Canada, reviewed the history of this policy to date and told of the steps taken to popularize beef. Although only a few months old, best grading has been enthusiastically received, this speaker stated, and some substantial benefit to the producer is anticipated in the future.

The members of the association refused to give approval to a suggestion that horned cattle sold on the market be penalized one dollar per head, the fund thus created to be used for the benefit of the industry, but gave consent to a resolution asking the provincial government to consider giving financial assistance to livestock breeders in pure bred areas that they might secure sires of the right quality.

CAUGHT

An Irishman who was driven to desperation through being workless, procured a pistol and took to the road in a lonely spot. Meeting a traveller he opened with "Your money or your life." Seeing that Pat was green the man replied: "I'll tell you what I'll do, I'll give you all my money for that pistol."

Judge: "Pat, where did you buy the liquor?"

Pat: "Your honor, I did not buy it. A Scotchman gave it to me."

Judge: "Thirty days for perjury."

SANDY MAC
Pat was arrested for being intoxicated. On being brought before the Judge he was asked by the Court what he was there for.

Pat: "Your Honor, I was arrested for being intoxicated."

Judge: "Pat, where did you buy the liquor?"

Pat: "Your honor, I did not buy it. A Scotchman gave it to me."

Judge: "Thirty days for perjury."

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips' Milk of Magnesia has actually completely relieved the digestive organs all tranquillized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

The pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or febrile breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the same Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same.

COLONEL J. S. DENNIS RETIRES

COLONEL J. S. DENNIS, C.M.G., Chief Commissioner of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, will retire January 1, after 28 years with the company, according to the recent announcement made by E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the system, and the department will then be divided into the Department of Immigration and Colonization and the Department of Development. J. N. K. Macalister, at present assistant chief commissioner of Colonization and Development, will be chief commissioner of the Department of Immigration and Colonization and Major G. G. Ommannney will be the director of the Department of Development.

Colonel Dennis, or "J.S." as he is known to old-timers, was 73 years old last October, and has had as colorful a career as any man in Canada. He went west in 1872 at the age of 16 on survey work and in 1886 saw service against Louis Riel as commander of the Dominion Land Survey Intelligence Corps which during the rebellion was known as "Dennis' Scouts". Among the outstanding work in which he was engaged was the laying out of irrigation systems later constructed in the Lethbridge region and in the great Basque Dam irrigation project of the Canadian Pacific Railway, east of Calgary. His unrivalled knowledge of Canadian economic and agrarian development has caused Colonel Dennis's name to be placed among the foremost of Empire builders. Although retiring as active head of the Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific Railway system, he will still participate in the future development of the company's directors.

Mr. Macalister has for more than 22 years given close attention to colonization problems. Since 1906 he has been immediately interested in opportunities of development and colonization in the west and entered Canadian Pacific service in 1907. He has done much work in the United States drawing attention to the unparalleled opportunities offered by the Canadian West. He was appointed assistant commissioner of the department in 1926. His ability in his chosen field was recently recognized by colonization experts from all parts of the continent when they elected him chairman of the immigration committee of the American Railway Development Association.

Major Ommannney joined the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1907. As a qualified civil engineer he had previously to that date done work all over the world. In 1914 he was appointed special engineer to the president, and from 1915 to 1919 was overseas with the Royal Engineers Imperial unit. On his return from the war he was appointed to Colonel Dennis' department as development engineer, to bring the natural resources of territories covered by the Canadian Pacific Railway into commercial use. He was appointed Director of Development Branch of the Department of Colonization & Development in January, 1928.

O. L. McPherson. This is a record for nearly twenty years, the 1929 total being the largest since 1910, when the capital building was underway.

The list of new buildings erected for the government during the year is as follows: Edmonton Normal school, $550,000; dormitory at the provincial institute, Oliver, $100,000; three buildings at the Mental Hospital, Ponoka—nurses' home, $50,000; treatment and reception building, $170,000; dining hall, $25,000. Government liquor store at Hapna, Lloydminster and, Wainwright ($7,000 each) $21,000; court house, Hanna, $25,000; two service garages at Edmonton and Calgary ($35,000 each), $50,000; university hospital addition, $200,000; and small unit for Red Cross—$25,000; provincial training school at Red Deer, boys' dormitory, $30,000, and addition to present building, $16,000.

There was also built during the year additional to the "farmers' of at Fort Saskatchewan," but since it was done with prison labor, involving only a small expenditure for material, it is not included in the general construction program.

NEWSPAPER LAWS

Excerpts from Newspaper Law, printed for the benefit of any reader who may have mistaken ideas regarding same:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) if the subscriber does not take the paper out of the post office and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.
3. Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he subscribes or not, is responsible for payment.
4. If a subscriber orders his paper stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. This follows the principle that a man must pay for what he uses.

SCOTCH TO THE END

Miles: Well, old Gent MacDonough remained Scotch to the last breath.

Plyce: What do you mean?

Miles: When he felt a heart attack coming on he managed to fall in front of a passing auto, so the insurance company would have to pay his widow double indemnity.

FAT OR FASHIONABLE

A girl 21 years of age was admitted to a Sanatorium a few days ago. She was a member of a large family noted for their robust health and longevity. This girl was one of seven women patients all under 25 years of age who have come under the care of a chest specialist during the last three months, and the medical history of one was, with a few variations the medical history of them all. No fat, no sugar, no candies (no one instance no breakfast), light lunch and dinner consisting mostly of lettuce, fruit or vegetables. This diet combined with working hard and playing hard deprived the body of all power to resist diseases.

There was no energy in reserve to fight infection. A bad cold that would not be shaken off, a nasty little cough especially first thing in the morning, a marked lack of energy accompanied with an irritable temper, and the infection, getting every encouragement, developed into active disease. A young life crippled and sorrow and worry turn companions of prolonged sickness brought to the home, and all because my young lady must be fashionably thin. And yet woman being herself an intelligent, thinking being!

At a party in Palm Beach given by Mrs. Cooper Clary, Leeson, an attorney, meets Lucy Hartness, known as Devil-May-Care because of her adventurous, eventful life. In a game in which partners for the evening are chosen, Lucy is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful heart-breaker. Leeson is a bit jealous. Tim Stevens tells Lucy they are going aboard his yacht the Minerva, and she accedes in order not

To save Faunce she accedes, but expresses hate for Stevens. A few minutes later he starts her by saying he doesn't want her, and never will. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY. And, once they had been reduced to words they became something at which one might look, which one could study. And observation and study told her that those motives were things that could not be carried out into deeds.

She knew now that had not the storm lifted her from the arms of Faunce into the cabin of the Minerva she would have returned, herself, within twenty-four hours, to wherever her husband might be. For she would have realized, without Stevens' analysis of her intent, that in injuring him she must inevitably do dishonor to herself. Not the mere picture of dishonor which the mere scandal would evoke, but that real dishonor which is of one's own soul. Revenge must inevitably mean dishonor, for revenge is ignoble in itself.

No more thought of revenge, then, would enter her head. Rather, she would scheme to discover a way out of this blind alley into which desire for revenge had led her. Tim would not divorce her; he would not permit

"I can want to see fair play without being psychoanalyzed, can't I? I want a fair fight, and—" her to divorce him. But there must be some way out. Also, there must be some answer to this puzzle created by Tim's sudden business energy.

There was only one person who could possibly advise her, and that was Fergus Leeson. On those occasions, since her return to Palm Beach, when she had seen Faunce, they had kept their conversation on the safe middle ground of impersonalities. They had enjoyed each other, but only as casual acquaintances enjoy each other; there had been none of the revelation which had characterized their previous friendship. Well, she would try to return to that ground which they had occupied together before. She didn't know just what she wanted from Faunce, but whatever it was, he could supply it. Wasn't he the kindest and wisest man in the world? And didn't she need kindness and wisdom? Well, then—

Lucy came upon Faunce stretched luxuriously before an open fire—there was the faintest hint of chill in the air—smoking his pipe and reading from a small volume. To see at her cheery hand, took her hand, and led her to a camp-chair.

"Is this your island? Or, rather, doesn't my husband own it?" He thoughtfully knocked the ashes from his pipe and slowly refilled it.

"Curiosity, my dear, is sometimes the beginning of wisdom."

"Just what do you mean by that?" she asked.

"Just what do you mean by wanting to know whether or not your husband owns Mango Key?" he countered.

"Oh, Fergus! I have a right to know! Is he swindling his friends? Even my maid has turned all her savings with him! Is he robbing her and everyone else? I want to know."

"If you're worried about your maid, then worry about me, too."

"You mean to say that you've invested—Fergus!"

"I had a lease on this island which could not be cancelled by a sale. So, when Stevens put the situation before me, I relinquished my lease for a certain amount of stock."

"And that's why you speak kindly of him. Because business—Oh, Fergus! that you should put money before—me!"

"That isn't fair, Lucy. Money means little to me. I admit, I'm willing to make some. But putting you second to anything, save fair play—I haven't. Lucy, I want to talk to you."

"After The 'Flu' Heart Trouble Nerves in Bad Way"

Mrs. G. Ford, 1241 Georgia St., V. Vancouver, B.C. writes: "Since an attack of 'Flu' in March last I was all run down, and my nerves were in a very bad way."

"I suffered a great deal too with heated, flushing of the face due to heart trouble, and nothing my doctor prescribed seemed to relieve me."

"In the drug store, one day, I decided to try and needless to say that since taking them my trouble has all vanished, and I am quite a different woman today."

"I shall always be pleased to recommend them to all who suffer as I did."

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

But she shook her head and rose from the camp-chair.

"I don't want to listen. Please, Fergus—let me go."

Leeson did not take demerol so easily as she had hoped. When she refused his third invitation to luncheon, he telephoned and asked her if he might drop in for tea. She granted permission, and as they slipped the tea and bubbled cakes, she told him, quite gently but nevertheless firmly that she was a married woman and that even if she weren't, she'd not be at all interested in him.

"Why don't you marry Elsie Daragh?" she asked.

Young Leeson's face was miserable.

"Shouldn't I be a fine cad to marry a girl I didn't love?"

She laughed bitterly.

"I married a man I didn't love."

"And you are happy? Certainly not. Good Lord, Mrs. Stevens! I know you're way above me, but—well, I never could understand why—"

"And you'd tell me?"

"And you were certain of your ground?" she asked.

He shrugged.

"Our client's case was unimpeachable. Of course, I shouldn't talk to you this way, but—"

"I shouldn't have let you come here, shouldn't have put into words things you hadn't said to me, but you're a nice boy, and I could see—I wasn't condescended, was I? You see, if I thought you really loved me, I'd not have mentioned it. But you aren't in love with me. You're plagued about that race in the swimming-pool, you don't like Tim, and so you imagine that you care for me."

"Imagine!" he said angrily.

She nodded.

"That's all it is—imagination. Now let's be friends."

He smiled wanly and took her hand.

"I'll try," he said.

He came up to Lucy one evening at the Everglades. She'd dined inside with the Lars Petersens, and was now one of their party seated outside in Drangery, as the lovely dancing place is named.

"Your husband is the main person in the Lucy—is it St. Lucie?—development. Guess I've said enough."

She shrugged carelessly.

"If you don't want to tell me; if you think it's not to be repeated. Perhaps you've gathered I'm not particularly fond of Tim, haven't you?"

She could not have told, had her life depended on it, why she made this remark. It was a vulgar remark, sneering at one's own husband, and no one, save Fergus Faunce and Tim himself, had ever heard her state, since marriage, that she disliked Tim. Her actions may have informed people, but not her tongue.

"I always wondered—you know what you knew—well, you won't mind learning that he's going to learn a little lesson tonight."

"How?" she asked.

Caution, that had been unleashed by combination of circumstances, came back to him.

"Oh, well, you'll know to-morrow."

She shrugged indifferently. Then she laughed cynically.

"Why do you laugh?" he inquired.

She was tremendously, overwhelmingly tolerant as she replied:

"After all, Mr. Leeson, you're a very bright man, and all that, but—Tim Stevens is—But I mustn't hurt your feelings."

"You don't think I could out-manuever him?" he demanded.

She shrugged again.

"Hardly."

Caution gnawed right through its leash now and fled yelping away.

"Well, I have. His Lucy—or St. Lucie—city isn't worth a hoot unless he has a waterway. There's a cloud upon the title to Seminole Creek, and the bridges across it. My clients claim that they have an option on the land east of the creek. Stevens claims it's his. But tonight we're destroying the bridges across the creek, and to-morrow morning, bright and early we're beginning work on a dam that will deflect the creek, farther inland, so that it will flow through our property, give us a waterway, and deprive him of his. It means that our property, back from the ocean, will be worth treble what it commands to-day, and that Stevens' land will decrease proportionately."

"But why destroy the bridges?" she asked.

bridges, we'll be laying out our development, can offer it to the public so much earlier. It ticks Lucy—St. Lucie, is it?—and makes Clarytown.

"Does Mr. Clary know about this—and his wife?" asked Lucy.

"I don't know how much Mrs. Clary knows, but you can bet that Copper knows all about it. Why, it's mostly his scheme. He said that the public wouldn't bite at two developments, both so grandiose, so near together, so—get ours ready first."

"But the courts may say the bridges are Tim's, eh?"

He laughed.

"And we'll pay him damages for destroying his property. They may even make us destroy our dam and return the creek to him. But we'll have been selling our property to the public and getting in some cash returns on our investment. Stevens, who's up to his neck in this mine and who must get in some public money, will be out in the cold. We'll buy him in on our own terms."

"I see," she said. She smiled brightly. "Lucky that Tim and I aren't a loving couple, isn't it?"

CHAPTER VI
The freight gleamed on Faunce's cabin, and there, in its light, sat Faunce—and Tim. Engaged, they seemed to be, in amicable discourse over pipe and cigar. This was an amazing thing; the Lord knew these two had no reason to like each other. But it was not so pondered on this minute and minute.

"Leeson—Clary going to pull down bridges over Seminole Creek. Leeson told me. Just saw Clary—truckful of men. Hinder your work—make you sell out."

"Bless you! you don't need to tell me why!" cried Stevens.

He stared at her.

"But why do you—what do you care?"

"Damn it!" she shrieked. "I can want to see fair play without being psycho-analyzed, can't I? I want a fair fight, and—"

Stevens laughed booming.

"All right, Lucy! You'll see a fight. Come on."

He looked at Dr. Faunce. He spoke with a rapidity and assurance that dazed his wife. He seemed to grasp all angles of a situation in a moment. he laughed. "I've always disliked the law, anyway. Let's slap it on the face tonight."

"Even Clary and Lord knows he's pulled plenty raw deals—wouldn't start anything like this without old John Law behind him. Probably has a sheriff or two. I'll be legally in the wrong, Doctor. But they'll get away with anything over my dead carcass, and no way else. So—how about you?"

"The freight gleamed on Faunce's whimsical mouth."

"Why spoil what promises to be a cheery party, by talk of illegality?"

Then there was the Scotchman who bought the car because the clutch was thrown in.

Stevens' great arm described a semicircle, and his palm thwacked resoundingly on the surgeon's back.

"Atta kid! Any one with nerve enough to dig out an appendix has plenty heart. Let's go. Got a gun?"

NEW HUMAN DISEASE CAUSED BY RABBITS

Syracuse, N.Y.—Never eat a rabbit that you can kill with a club, for it's probably sick, advises Dr. G. C. Ruhland, Commissioner of Health, in a statement issued here recently. And Tularemia, the disease that slows down the rabbit, can kill the hunter, for according to American statistics, out of 420 cases, 173 have ended fatally. Thus the mortality is about 4 per cent. Generally the infection comes from dressing the animal, the germ entering the human hand through an abrasion at the point of which an ulcer is raised. The onset of the disease is sudden, often occurring while the patient is at work, and is characterized by headache, nausea, chills, excessive perspiration, body pains, prostration and fever. The latter symptom is always present and continues for two or three weeks. Tularemia, so named, because it was discovered in a ground squirrel in Tulare County, California, is caused by a germ, Bacterium Tularensis. Cases of the disease among humans have been found in all parts of the states, excepting New England. Rabbit meat thoroughly cooked, however, is harmless, since a temperature of 133 degrees Fahrenheit kills the Tularemia germs.

Headaches Were So Bad They Kept Her Awake

Headaches seem to be habitual with some people; some are seldom, if ever, free from them, suffering continually from the dull throbbings, the intense pains, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and again over the whole head. There is only one way to get relief from these persistent headaches, and that is by going direct to the cause of the trouble, for unless the cause is removed the headaches will continue to exist, and the fact that keeps the stomach, liver and bowels toned up is proof enough to show that it will eliminate the cause of the headaches. Mrs. A. M. Arsenault, New Aberdeen, N.S., writes: "For a period of 1 year I had been troubled with headaches and they were so bad they kept me awake at night. I was advised by a friend to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking three bottles I was completely relieved, and can recommend it to be a perfect medicine."

"EVIDENCE"

A great play made greater on the talking screen by a great star and cast. "Evidence" is a powerful argument against putting too much credence in circumstantial evidence when it involves a woman's honor, a man's happiness and a child's future. In it a situation is developed that seems to a lawyer husband inexcusable and inexplicable. It is neither, but he will not listen to explanation. Do not miss this great picture. The surge of emotion will grip you as you sit before this great cast and lose yourself in their superb acting.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of Mildred Jervis, who died on January 15, 1929.

I cannot say, and I will not say, "That she is dead." She is just away! With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand.

And left us dreaming, how very fair it needs must be, since she lingers there.

And you—oh, you, who the wildest yearn For the old-time step and the glad return,

Think of her faring on, as dear In the love of there, as the love of here.

Think of her still as the same. I say She is not dead—she is just away.

MOTHER & FATHER.

FAMILY DOCTOR
LEARNED THIS ABOUT
CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were suffering from health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, listlessness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripped; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

WORLD'S "CLEANEST"
TEA WAREHOUSE
IN DOMINION

On a tour of the Dominion, under the auspices of the British Institute of Certified Grocers, six post graduates visited the Montreal plant of the Salada Tea Company of Canada, Limited. The following report appeared in the Tea & Coffee Trade Journal of New York.

"During the tour they (the graduates) inspected some of the wholesale and retail tea concerns in the Dominion and they considered that the Montreal plant of the Salada Tea Company was the most modern and cleanest tea blending warehouse and packing centre in the world."

Canada has reason to be proud of industries that can make such an impression on visitors of this calibre.

CUT THIS OUT

Old English Recipe for Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh, cut this formula, and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalants and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmit (Double strength). "Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one table spoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmit used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

KNOW ABOUT CANCER

Cancer is one of the most frequent causes of death in adults, after the age of forty. In Canada, over 3,000 people die each year of cancer. These facts are not presented to alarm the reader, but rather to show that this picture can be brightened if the public at large are properly informed on this subject. Just as soon as the facts about cancer are known, and our people act upon the knowledge which they have acquired, the number of deaths from this disease will be reduced tremendously to at least half of what they are at present.

This reduction is possible. It is within our grasp; it does not await any new discovery; it can be secured by the use of the knowledge we now possess regarding the means of combatting and conquering this menace.

Whether or not cancer is to be properly treated depends much more upon the public than it does upon the medical profession. By this statement, we simply mean that the degree of success in its treatment of cancer depends upon its discovery in its earliest stages. The doctor stands ready to treat, but it is not possible for him to do for his patient what he could do in the early stages of the disease were the cause known to him then.

Unfortunately, in the minds of many people there is fixed an idea that cancer is a hopeless condition, and that it is useless to run to the doctor about it. They have some reason for this idea because they have seen relatives and friends treated without success. In most cases, however, the reason why these treatments were not successful was because the patients had failed to consult their doctor until the disease was far advanced.

There is no reason why, at the present time, we should not view the cancer problem in a hopeful way. Every person in Canada should know that, where cancer is properly treated in its earliest stages, a very high percentage of cases are actually cured. Surely, such a statement should banish the hopeless "do nothing" attitude and replace it by a confident "early action" frame of mind.

What To Eat

Strict diets are often unnecessary in stomach trouble. While some foods do produce excessive acidity and many stomachs do generate "too much acid" causing gas, sourness, bloating and after-eating pains, the trouble may be safely and quickly corrected by the use of a good alkaline: Blasted Magnesia—powder or tablets—is ideal for this purpose. Just a little after meals neutralizes all the excess acid, prevents souring, breaks up gas and ends indigestion. Favorite foods no longer upset stomach and digestion is easy and painless. It will do all this for you or money back. Druggists everywhere sell Blasted Magnesia with this guarantee.

Advertise in the paper that circulates all over the district thoroughly.
